WITTE GOES FROM ST. PETERSBURG

Peace Envoy To The Conference In Washington Has A
Talk With The Czar---Will Sail Next Week
For America.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE]
St. Petersburg, July 18.—It is reported here that a large party of Zemstovists and Dumaists at Moscow are in favor of issuing a proclamation deposing Emperor Nicholas, and establishing a regency for the Grand Duke Alexis Nicolaievitch, the infant heir to the throne under four grand dukes. It is alleged that for this reason the Zemstovist congress, scheduled tomorrow at Moscow has been prohibited.

Witte Ready To Leave
St. Petersburg, July 18.—M. Witte had a final interview with the Emperor at Peterhof today. M. Witte leaves for Paris tomorrow and will sail for the United States on the peace mission. It is announced 475,265 will be called to perform military service during the present year.

M. Witte's Ideas
St. Petersburg, July 18.—Doubt that the coming peace conference in the United States between the plenipotentiaries of Russia and Japan will result in an agreement to end the war was voiced by M. Witte, the senior Russian envoy.

In according to the interview, M. Witte said he expressly desired it stated that he had declined all previous requests of journalists for interviews and would decline all future requests.

M. Witte received the correspondent in the cabinet of his villa on Yelagin Island, which overlooks a vast park, in front of which runs the sweeping Neva.

With his big frame and high, narrow forehead, from which the scant hair was brushed straight back, emphasized by the strong lines of the face, M. Witte instantly would be recognized as a man of power and energy and a born leader of men.

Personal Views are Secondary.
He spoke in French. After greetings, which were cordial, the conversation gravitated quickly to the high mission with which the Russian statesman is charged and the disposition of the foreign press to interpret his appointment as an indication that Russia had decided to make peace at any price.

"No, no," said he, straightening up in his chair and speaking slowly and distinctly, as if weighing the value of each word. "In the first place, I have been designated by the emperor as his ambassador extraordinary for negotiations with the Japanese plenipotentiaries to ascertain whether it is possible to conclude a treaty of peace. My personal views are of secondary importance, but my ideas are in entire accord with those of my friend, Count Lamsdorf.

Will Follow Instructions.
"In serving my emperor, I have received precise instructions from his majesty, and shall follow them.

"The ultimate decision remains in the hands of the emperor, and it is for him to decide the destinies of Russia. The emperor is the friend of peace and desires peace, but I very much fear that the Japanese terms will be such that we will be unable to reach an accord.

Secondly, the world should disabuse its mind of the idea that Russia wants peace at any price. There are two parties in Russia. One favors the continuation of the war a outright—this is a large and influential party. The other, to which I belong, favors peace. I avow it frankly, because telling the truth has always been my rule in politics. I was for peace before hostilities broke out. When the war began the situation changed.

Terms Must Be Reasonable.
"Even though there are these two parties as to the advisability of ending the war, in the present circumstances both would be united if the Japanese demands wounded the amour propre of the Russian people or jeopardized our future as a nation.

"I am sure if I report that the conditions of Japan cannot be accepted, Russia will accept the verdict and the Russian people will be ready to continue the war for years, if necessary.

"Thirdly, Russia is not crushed, as the foreign press has led the world to believe. The interior situation is very serious, I do not deny, but in Europe and America the true significance of what is happening is not understood. Correspondents come here and talk with a few hundred people in St. Petersburg and Moscow, misinterpret what is happening and fill the world with false impressions as to Russia's future.

SIXTY MEN WORKING IN SUGAR FACTORY
Whole Mechanism is Being Practically Rebuilt To Make Finest Sugar Obtainable.

When the Rocky County Sugar Co.'s factory renews operations next fall it will be fully equipped for turning out the very best sugar that can be manufactured from the sugar beet. Its product will be unsurpassed even by that of the Mt. Clemens, Mich., institution which turned out a grade of the saccharine substance last year which called for fancy prices in the market. Sixty men, including Chief Engineer Hines of the Mt. Clemens plant, are now at work overhauling, replacing, improving, and in many instances enlarging the various portions of the mechanism used in the local factory. They will be busy until the fall crop begins to come in, according to Manager M. R. Osborne, who was interviewed this morning, and when they have finished the factory will be ready to make sugar by the identical process employed by the Michigan plant already alluded to. Another large gas-pump to reinforce the one installed last year is to be put in the vacuum pans where the syrup is boiled to sugar are to be increased in number and usefulness; the rock separator enlarged; new conduits built for the beets; the centrifugals improved; machinery that has been in the third story removed to the first and vice versa; and the whole mechanical works practically rebuilt. The factory has never run capacity but with everything readjusted Manager Osborne expects that the average this fall will be 600 tons daily with the output for some days ranging as high as 675 tons. There will be no better factory in the world when the local one gets under way again. Besides the work in the factory proper, hardwood floors, window casings, etc., must be installed in the offices; the plastering on the walls finished; the woodwork and iron on the buildings painted; and numberless other things done that had to be overlooked last year. The work of hand-picking will not be taken up to any extent until next season, though the roads will be improved somewhat this year.

BEAT SON TO DEATH; FIGHTS TO GO FREE

Mother, Found Guilty of Brutal Murder, Brings Action for Re-mandment of Sentence.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Richmond, Va., July 18.—The case of Mrs. Estelle Townsend Smith, who was convicted of killing her six-year-old son by beating him to death, came before the courts again today when argument was begun to have the verdict of five years, given Mrs. Smith a week ago, set aside. The husband of the woman who was indicted jointly with her, will soon be put on trial for his share in the crime, which has aroused this section of the state and brought letters of condemnation to the accused woman from other states.

OBSCURE GHETTO GIRL THE BRIDE OF MILLIONAIRE

J. G. Phelps Stokes, Wealthy Graduate of Yale and Son of Old Family, Marries a Student in University Settlement.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Norfolk, Conn., July 18.—The wedding of J. G. Phelps Stokes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, to Miss Rose Harriet Pastor, the settlement worker and former cigar-maker was celebrated here today at Brick House, the palatial country home of Mr. Stokes' parents. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, Secretary of Yale University and brother of the bridegroom, only relatives and intimate friends being present.

Bride Born in Russia
The bride's wedding gown was a simple confection in white satin, said to have cost only $40, although her husband is a millionaire several times over and their romance has become world-famous because of the difference in religion and social station of the couple. Incidentally, today is the twenty-sixth birthday of Mrs. Stokes. The couple will soon sail for Europe, where they will visit Russia, the birthplace of the bride; London, the scene of her early childhood, and all the principal cities of Europe. On returning to America they will settle in the East Side of New York City and devote their lives to the bettering of the condition of the poor there, the most of whom are Hebrews.

Both Settlement Workers.
The Stokes-Pastor romance, was distinctly one of the "Ghetto" and the Settlement House. The groom, a millionaire, Yale graduate and scion of one of the wealthiest families of New England, had left a life of ease and luxury to live in the University Settlement, devoting his whole time to teaching and uplifting the poor. He had become famous for his philanthropic efforts. Miss Pastor was earning her living by daily toil. At night she would go to the settlement, where she taught and studied. Finally she began to write and has produced some very creditable verses. She had picked up English while a cigar-maker in Cleveland. Returning to New York, she became a writer for one of the Jewish dailies. It was at this time that she met Mr. Stokes. A quick bond of sympathy was formed. The courtship and the announcement of the engagement gave society a shock such as it has not had before in a decade, as there were many number of eligible society girls who would have been flattered to receive a proposal of marriage from the husband of the poor working girl.

RAILROADS TO HELP THE LAW

Express A Desire To Aid The New Rate
Commission As Much As Possible.

EXPRESS A GREAT WILLINGNESS

Representatives Meet With The Commission In Madison
To Discuss The Different Phases Of The Situation.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., July 18.—That the railroad companies are disposed to cooperate with the new railroad rate commission in the enforcement of the law passed by the last legislature is shown by the manner in which all the companies have taken steps to inform their employees of the provisions of the law. Railroad Commissioner Thomas and the newly organized rate commission are receiving daily books printed and sent out by the several companies, containing the new law, together with explicit orders that it is the duty of the employees to which these books are sent to carefully study the law and familiarize themselves with its provisions, and to see to it that all the provisions of the law are strictly enforced. These books are sent to all such employees as are most connected with the work affected by the law, such as general and local agents for the freight and passenger business, depot officials and the clerks and assistants engaged in the handling of freight. The preface to the law is the order from the head officials of the road that the law must be strictly enforced to the letter of its provisions.

Visit Commission
Another incident which tends to the same showing was the visit of the leading officers of the Wisconsin Central road to the rate commission Monday afternoon. They came to call and meet the members of the commission informally, ask a few questions regarding certain provisions of the law concerning the proper construction of the road was in doubt. It was desired to obtain from the commission some suggestion on these points which should assist the attorneys of the road to determine how to construe the law, so as to avoid a possible difference with the view of the commission, in case these points figured in a possible controversy which the commission would have to hear and decide. Just what these matters were was not given out, but it was learned that particular information was sought regarding the issuing of free transportation to certain employees, who hold positions in which only a part of their time is occupied with railroad duties, such as local railroad physicians and attorneys.

Will Follow Law
The visitors repeatedly assured the commissioners of their determination to follow the new law carefully and not in any way evade or resist it. This fact has caused some La Follette people to suggest that the purpose of the visit of the officials was to "jolly" the commissioners, and that each road would send a similar "good fellow" party to Madison. The impression apparently made upon the commission, however, is that the officials of the road are honest and sincere in their determination to work in harmony with the state in the execution of the expressed will of the legislature.

FALLS SIXTY FEET AND IS BADLY HURT
Ft. Atkinson Man Has Serious Accident While Painting a Barn in That City.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Ft. Atkinson, July 18.—While painting Frank Ramsey's barn, Henry Walker fell from a ladder over sixty feet above the ground. The ladder had been placed in a wagon, but the wheels were not block and when Walker reached the top of the ladder the wagon commenced to move. The ladder tumbled over and he fell to the ground. When picked up he was unconscious. His injuries included a broken arm, broken leg, jawbone broken in six places, fractured ribs and internal injuries. He is not expected to live. Drs. Stair, Nair, Caswell and Brewer worked over him all day but were unable to ease his sufferings. Over a year ago Mr. Walker fell in the same way, breaking a leg.

PLAN EXTENSION
NOW TO MADISON?
It is rumored that the Rockford, Beloit & Janesville Interurban Ry. Co. has commenced a survey for an extension of that road to Madison. The foundation for this rumor lies in the appearance in this city on Sunday of H. L. Shaw, a civil engineer from Lorain, Ohio, and W. S. Peters, a roadman from Elkhart, Ohio, in company with Manager Clough. The interurban officials refuse to vouchsafe any information on the subject but it comes from reliable sources that the two men mentioned have already made a preliminary survey of the proposed line, riding on horseback from Edgerton, and that the actual survey will commence at once.

FISHING IN THE CARRIBBEAN SEA

N. A. WATTS WRITES INTEREST-ING LETTERS FROM PANAMA.

FEVER AMONG ROWDIES ONLY

Ninety-Five Per Cent of the Yellow Fever Cases Caused From Dissemination in Chinese Joints.

N. A. Watts, the young man who left his position with the Fairbanks, Morse company in Beloit to take the place of operator of the railroad automobile on the Panama line to be used by the chief constructing engineer, has written two more letters home describing further many of the interesting things he has seen in the Canal Zone. From Cristobal Colon on June 13 he wrote in part as follows:

On a Fishing Excursion.
"Although this is the forepart of the rainy season, it has rained but a few times and has been fair weather nearly all of the time. I have been fortunate in meeting Mr. J. B. Rhodes, who is here in the interests of the Western Wheeled Scraper Co. of Aurora, Ill. He is superintending the erection and starting of some dump cars purchased by the Commission for use on the Isthmus. The dump cars Mr. Rhodes is delivering to the Commissioners are the largest and most up-to-date cars in this line ever made, being equipped with the regulation air brake and the dumping manipulations are also operated by air. While Mr. Rhodes is a young man he has held positions with some well known machine manufacturing companies in the capacity of master mechanic, designer, etc. Mr. Rhodes is also quite a sportsman and a few days ago we took a native guide with a boat and went out into the Caribbean Sea about a mile to fish, just after daylight. We caught several fish, the largest about eighteen or twenty inches in length.

After Alligator Hides.
"The sea here as well as the harbor and Chagres river, which is to be part of the great canal, abounds in many kinds of fish, shark, alligators, etc. This makes fishing quite an exciting sport here, as one cannot tell what may be on the hook end of a line until you begin to haul in. Alligators may be seen in the shallow water in great numbers most any time. Our guide cautioned us about our arms inside the boat on account of the sharks. We handed our fish to the head waiter who brought part to us for breakfast, the novelty of the thing making the meal of a little more interest to us under the circumstances. Mr. Rhodes had with him a twenty-two calibre rifle with which he shot at some alligators, but the gun was not large enough to kill them. We are making arrangements for borrowing a large rifle and expect to get an alligator hide each soon. The natives here eat tan than so they may be taken to the states and there perfected. Mr. Rhodes already has obtained the bill of a saw fish which has sixteen ivory teeth on either side of it. Tiger cat skins may be bought most anywhere for fifty cents, gold and silver animals such as tapir, ant bear, deer, mountain lion, etc., may be had by going out a few miles into the interior. Pelican may be seen from the Washington Hotel skimming the water nearby in the morning in search of a breakfast fish.

A Good Vacation Resort.
"The shore all about Colon and Cristobal is strewn with coral, petrifed shell, etc. All the ocean steamers from all parts of the world come to anchor in the harbor about two miles from my telegraph office and the days of the arrival of the New York and New Orleans steamers are well known to all the boys who invariably ask me as to their arrival and the train that would probably take their much sought for mail to them. As I went home from work last evening I picked up a hat full of pretty shells on the beach, of various shapes and colors. Altogether I think anyone wanting to spend a vacation for shooting, fishing, etc., would find this to be a good place to come to. As I write I have just received a telegram from Chief Engineer Wallace directing me to one of the inland stations in the morning with the railway automobile which I am to take charge of."

Visits Culebra Cut.
On June 19 Mr. Watts again wrote. The letter, which was dated from Colon was partly as follows:

"I made a trip over to Culebra today and spent about two hours about the big cut. In order to view this piece of work to best advantage, I climbed up the mountain side to the summit and stood on the brink of the abrupt descent at a point which gave me an excellent view of it in either direction. Excavation has already been made to a depth of 250 or 300 feet at the highest point. The surface is covered with vegetation bordering on either side of the cut and I noticed, in my ascent, many kinds of trees, vines, etc., many of the trees being banana. Below the earth, the excavation is nearly all rock of a brown color, which slacks to some extent after being exposed to the air and rain. This greatly aids in the handling of it. The largest steam shovel could pick up boulders four feet square and probably weighing many tons. Considerable dynamite is used in breaking the larger ones. From my position, I watched the numerous trains moving back and forth hauling the excavations out. They looked like toys from such a height and while many were in the bottom, part of them were in the narrow gorges all up the sides any of which, had they left the track would have fallen a great distance below. The working of the trains, steam shovels and track men suggested to me an idea not unlike that suggested by an ant hill on a busy day.

"In after years when ships are passing through the canal, anyone who may have the pleasure of standing in this particular place and view the magnificence before him, will realize a feeling of respect for, and homage due him, who has been the director and engineer of it all. The workmen, too, who have helped to complete this work, will receive their share of honor, in what is without doubt the greatest undertaking ever commenced.

Disease Not Prevalent.
"Culebra is but one of many places where work has been done. A trip through on the railway will show a great deal of work done by the French. There are hundreds of workmen at Culebra and they have nice quarters and good board. I think from what I have seen that all of the men are well satisfied and those who are not, are either cold footed or are poor material for anything. There are a great many boys who have seen army service in Cuba or the Philippines and with no exception, these men seem perfectly contented as do the men who have been on construction work before, and are used to camp life or roughing it. This is a good place for one, who really wants to work and has any of the sand in him that goes to make a good soldier. Wages are good and board is above the average, and work of bettering the accommodations is going on as fast as possible. So far as climate goes, there is always sickness here among the natives and lower classes but it is principally a question of good personal care and a good constitution after you get here. There are a great many of the lowest classes of roustabouts from different countries, who come here and drink and dissipate in the Chinese saloons and contract fever, etc., and it is this class that makes about ninety-five per cent of the deaths from yellow fever.

"The deer are so tame that they come out along the line of the canal and it is a common thing to see them in the morning or evening. The banana industry along the line is considerable, many cars being loaded daily at the stations and sent to New York and New Orleans on the steamers; the New Orleans steamers having but little else on their return trips from Colon. The coconut trade is also quite extensive.

The Panama Railroad.
For the past week I have been making trips across the continent and back on the locomotives, "learning the road." It is a continuous stretch of curves on account of the mountainous condition of the country. There are a few stretches of a mile or so of straight track for about ten miles inland from Colon but beyond this an engine scarcely straightens from one curve before it starts another, some of which are quite short. The engineers and conductors are Americans, but the rest of the crews are Jamaicans. These Negroes are all educated and use the English language fluently and intelligently. Some of the station agents are Jamaicans, and they are all good workers although slow. The natives are ignorant and do but little except fish just enough to get what they require to eat. The Americans at Cristobal and Colon are making great preparations for the Fourth of July celebration. Gov. Magoon and the Panamanian Governor are to make addresses."

Labor Notes

Steps are being taken to organize the workers in Tasmania and unite existing organizations in one body. With this object in view the Tasmania Workers' Association has been formed.

At a political meeting held in London, Ont., recently, the newly appointed Minister of Public Works, C. Sherman, declared that every employee charged with committing an infraction of the Allen Labor Act will be deported.

The Massachusetts Supreme Court recently handed down a decision holding that the attempt to force all laborers to combine in unions is against the policy of the law, because it acts as a "monopoly of the labor market."

The settlement of the miners' strike in Morris Run, Pa., has been ratified, and the men have returned to work, after a year's idleness.

The Unemployed Workmen's Bill, introduced in the British House of Commons recently, proposes to establish local bodies in London for the purpose of discriminating among applicants, and also a central body which alone will be empowered to provide employment exclusively on a farm colony.

In Finland the women of the lower classes perform labor that in other countries is usually assigned to men. They wheel handcarts and barrels containing heavy burdens. They also sweep the streets, act as boatmen, and even assist in loading ships.

The National Train Dispatchers' Association, in convention at Denver, Col., recently adopted resolutions demanding the establishment of the block system on every railway in the United States.

Organized Labor of Philadelphia, Pa., declaring that it could control between 60,000 and 80,000 voters, has nominated Frank Feeney for sheriff, and declares it will throw its strength to either of the great parties which endorses him.

A conference held recently between the president and superintendent of the Coney Island and Brooklyn railroad and a delegate of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railways Employees, after which it was announced that an agreement between the company and its employees for another year had been signed.

Woman are rapidly supplanting men as station agents on the railroads running out of Chicago, according to high officials. The reason for this is found in the fact that women are proving more efficient. All of the women agents are expert telegraphers. They receive and send train orders, and handle all of the telegraph business at the stations at which they are employed. They are paid an average of $50.00 a month.

Railway News in General.

New York.—Developments in the railroad world within the past few days show that the severance of his official connection with the Gould lines has not ended the bitter fight being waged between Joseph Ramsey, Jr., and George Gould. It is known that this war is constantly growing in its influence and not only are Mr. Gould and Mr. Ramsey uncompromisingly opposed to each other, but the juggling with millions in the purchase of the Pittsburgh terminal facilities for the Wabash has broken friendships of many years' standing, to say nothing of the diversion of vast coal and railroad interests. In the meantime those who are in a position to know say that the merry little Ramsey-Gould war is most gratifying to Pennsylvania interests.

The exorbitant prices which passengers are sometimes compelled to pay to news agents on some railroads have long been a matter of protest and it is pleasing to note that the agents on the San Pedro have been prohibited by the management from doubling the price on magazines and current publications. This is a very proper protection for the travelling public and will be correspondingly appreciated.

If a petition which the standard lines has in the course of preparation is granted, the Central Passenger Association will boycott the Grand Trunk line until such time as the Canadian road accepts the decision of the arbitrators in the Michigan Central differential case. This would mean the disruption of the Joint Passenger Committee by the war in which the Grand Trunk, Erie and Wabash are arrayed against the Michigan Central and the New York Central. Undoubtedly the ultimate outcome will be an arbitration of the entire differential question as applied to all lines between St. Louis, Chicago and New York.

Westinghouse airbrakes are to be applied to every freight car on the Pennsylvania that is not now so equipped. The number is about 15,000 and the improvement will cost about $900,000.

Arrangements have been completed by General Passenger Agent Hanson of the Illinois Central and E. P. Bicknell, of the Chicago Bureau of charities for the free transportation of a woman 500 of Chicago's poor men, women and children to different points along the Illinois Central for summer outings.

Special tests are now being used on the glass that covers the signal lamps of several western roads. It has been claimed that the breaking of glass on signal lamps by heat has been the cause of numerous accidents. To prevent any occurrence of this kind all of the glass is subject to 900 degrees of heat.

It is authoritatively announced that the Houston, Beaumont & Red River from Houston, Texas to Alexandria, La., is to be built. The road is distinctively a Houston enterprise.

Southwestern roads have agreed to reduce the rates on cotton to New Orleans five cents per hundred pounds to get them in line with the Texas commission's of Galveston. This leaves the differential 10 cents in favor of Galveston, but this is not deemed sufficient by that port and an effort will be made to get a reconsideration.

It is announced that the Santa Fe will build a new tunnel under a tunnel. The tunnel will be on the main line and through Raton Hill and will be 5,000 feet, or nearly a mile in length, 144 feet below the present tunnel. The cost of the improvement will be about $1,000,000, and it is believed by the Santa Fe engineers that the tunnel will result in a big saving in fuel for engines and that it will also do away with splitting freight trains to get them over Raton Hill, as is now the case.

Would Enforce Sunday Law.

New York, July 18.—Salesmen employed in retail stores on the lower east side, who work from fourteen to sixteen hours a day, seven days in a week, have determined to form an organization to compel the police to enforce the Sunday closing law.

New York Beggars' Trust.

New York, July 18.—Six beggars, who, it is said, are property owners, were arrested. One of the men, when searched, had a bank book showing $1,400 on deposit. The men were charged with forming a beggars' trust.

Alleged Pyromaniacs Under Arrest.

New York, July 18.—In the arrest of Philip Davis, a wealthy saloonkeeper, his son and others, the police believe they have the leaders of the East Side arson band.

FASHION NOTES

It is not all of life to live, as the old saying goes, but a great deal of the joy of living comes in owning some of the exquisite gowns which one sees in the ultra-smart atteliers of Paris these days. Although the season is too far advanced for the introduction of many more new things in the way of summer frocks, one finds much to admire in the styles that be.

Materials which lend themselves to airy effects are undoubtedly the ones which are in most demand, and naturally under this head would come next, mulls, organdies, mousselines and the wide variety of chiffons. It is a compliment to the month for weddings, too, that lovers' knots have been revived with something bordering almost a furor as a smart decorative pattern. They are worked out in fine hand-embroideries and marked out with delicate insertions of lace, frequently literally covering the skirt and blouse of a smart transparent frock.

A delightfully simple affair is of arbutus pink mousseline de sole hand-embroidered with these lovers' knots and having hemstitched hems. The skirt is walking length, with the hem perhaps three inches wide, and the embroidery starts from the hem forming a trailing effect to above the knees. About the waist the skirt is shirred to the depth of a shallow hip, outlined by another tracery of the embroidery.

The bodice blouses over an exquisite girde of Dresden satin and is embroidered daintily all over. The elbow sleeves have hemstitched flounces as a finish and finishing the design is a crin hat about the crown and under the brim of which are massed the most delicate pink linen roses.

The woman who is not satisfied with her own gift of originality to the extent of risking it to design her gowns, must then have blind faith in her couturiere and give her carte blanche in the matter of turning out her costumes, for there are so many different styles, all fashionable and all authentic, that one gets quite bewildered when confronted with them all. You do not know how many correct modes there really are until you spend a morning at the modiste's looking over the plates in the hope of finding something that will undo your neighbor's new creation and excite the envy of the women of your set. But if you are fortunate enough to select a couturiere whose judgment is infallible, then there is no need for worry.

One is always safe in choosing a semi-transparent fabric, whether it be linen or lace, silk or wool for a summer dress, and the same rule holds good in selecting applique laces, braids, and embroideries for trimmings.

Sleeves are about the most confusing things one finds among the fashions just now, and this is all the more unfortunate, because many of the gowns ordered at this time are intended for housewearing during the early autumn, if not later. Just when Dame Fashion's disciples had settled down to the gigot silhouette, out comes the close sleeve, almost hugging the arm to the elbow and finished with a scant cuff and two or three sets of lace ruffles. The long wrinkled sleeve, but close fitting, also seems to be making steady gains upon smart favor. The draped sleeve, shirred in both seams is very pretty and graceful and is one of the distinguishing features of a silver grey silk mull. The shirring is emphasized by tiny ruffles of white lace arranged in groups of three, running from the top of the sleeve to the wrists, where they emerge into wider frills of lace of the same design.

The dress itself is elaborately embroidered with broderie Anglaise. The waist opens at the front showing a surplice vest of narrow Valenciennes edging invisibly joined, and there is a collar and gumpie of all over Val. A narrow silver braid, outlined with rose velvet outlines the waists and trims the top of the collar. The skirt boasts no trimming save the elegant broderie Anglaise, through which the lining of pale grey taffeta gleams lustroously.

The expense of such a design could be reduced considerably in duplication, however, by having simply a flounce of the embroidery, with a shirred yoke and upper skirt of the mull.

BIGELOW POLICY IS AT STAKE

Banker Convict Tries to Save Insurance for His Family.
Milwaukee, Wis., July 18.—Though doing duty as a timekeeper in the federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, Frank G. Bigelow, through his representatives here, is making a fight to save his insurance policies for his wife and family, and is vigorously resisting their being converted to the use of his creditors. The face value of the policies is $524,665, of which $200,000 is equally divided between the Equitable and the Massachusetts Life. The cash surrender value of the policies is $48,292 and $2,154 is due on premiums. Should the creditors be given judgment for the policies by the referee they may decide to pay the premiums, amounting to $22,766 a year, as it is not believed that the defaulter will live out his term of imprisonment.

Baseball.—The young men of the city have another game of baseball this evening at 6 o'clock, at their usual place of playing. Let those who wish an enjoyable time, be on hand.

Dangerous Shooting.—About four o'clock on Friday afternoon, last, a bullet passed into the kitchen of J. T. Wright, in its flight crushing through two panes of glass—the lower sash being up—and tearing its way out through the blinds on the opposite side of the room. This unpleasant messenger passed near the head of the servant girl giving her a decided fright. Where the shot came from is unknown, but the practice of firing in the city limits is a dangerous one, and the ordinance against it should be vigorously enforced.

Our dispatches have already announced the discovery of another great lake in Africa from which the Nile takes its source. The discoverer, Mr. Samuel Baker, an English traveler, finds it to be located north latitude 2 deg. 27 min. and has named it Albert Nyanza. Captain Speke, who discovered the other lake reservoir of the Nile, having called the latter Victoria Nyanza. The Nile draws its water from both of these lakes, but the last found is the main source of the river.

An Asylum for Soldiers' Orphans.—Mrs. Harvey is now engaged in enlisting the sympathies and co-operation of the citizens of the state in an enterprise which cannot fail to meet general approval. It is to found an asylum for orphans of soldiers where they can be maintained and educated. The Journal says:

"Mrs. Harvey's plan is to rely partially on the munificence of the General and State governments, and partly on individual generosity, for founding such an institution in this state. She proposes to ask the General Government to donate what it has done in enlarging the Harvey Hospital; to obtain from private subscriptions funds to purchase the original edifice and grounds; and, thus having provided an ample building, and a site, which for beauty and salubrity cannot be equalled, to ask the State to support it."

MOTHER IS THE ONLY MOURNER

Starts to Dig Child's Grave at Milwaukee, but Sexton Helps Her. Milwaukee, Wis., July 18.—Mrs. Joseph Weidman, a widow, and her dead child were the central figures in a pathetic incident. Without money or friends, the woman faced the prospect of seeing her little one buried in the potter's field, but, with her courage stimulated by her mother love, she persuaded the poor commissioner to give her a plain coffin, placed the child in it herself, secured a burial certificate and was driven to the cemetery, in which her husband lies buried, by a sympathetic expressman. She was about to dig the grave herself, but the sexton came to her aid and donated his services. Then, with the help of the sexton, she lowered the little body into the grave and came away weeping, the only mourner to watch the clouds fall.

Would Detain Alleged Embezzler. Washington, July 18.—The governor of Pennsylvania has made a request on the state department for the provisional detention of Stephen Borrochini, wanted in Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, on the charge of embezzlement. Borrochini is under detention at Havre, France.

Rabbit Fur Rivals Wool. If the industry now being carried on by a Frenchman at Lons le Saunier in the Jura district proves profitable on a large scale rabbit fur may become a rival to sheep's wool in the making of clothes generally. The breed utilized is the Angora or "silk rabbit," which molts four times a year. The fur, just before it falls off naturally, can be stripped easily by skilled hands.

TWO PRETTY PARTY FROCKS

The little dancer is dressed in a frock of sheer white mull, cut out round on the shoulders, and trimmed with a handkerchief bertha, generously ruffled with lace. The bodice is long and puffed, becoming over the sash, while the skirt is straight, shirred to the band, with medallions and lace applied after a pattern as a heading to the lace-trimmed ruffle that finishes the skirt. The sash is a broad one of very pale blue satin ribbon and the smart hair knot is to correspond. The seated child wears a high neck frock of white organdie, the yoke and collar of Valenciennes lace, edged with a bertha of elaborate construction, in which organdie and lace are used equally. The blouse is pulled over the belt, which is arranged to come about the natural waistline, and the sash is closely tied at this point, a splashing bow and ends appearing in the back. The skirt is shirred and displays a deep hem, with three rows of lace insertion heading it. The sleeve is a long puff, with a cuff that repeats the pattern and elaboration of the bertha.

Fair tonight and Wednesday; Wednesday cooler with fresh south, shifting to west, winds.

You may safely plan vacations for yourself and for every one of your employees—if you do not give your store-advertising any vacation.

THE REAL SECRETS.

The big retail mail order concerns are past-masters of the art of description, and that is two-thirds the battle in trade getting. It is the convincing talk supplemented by proportionate prices that brings orders. As "Lafe" Young said: A pulling advertisement was like the fair young maiden with that "come hither" look in her eyes.

The catalogue houses use standard goods (by that we mean nationally advertised goods with a brand or trade mark) only as leaders. They will advertise in a few short sentences Disston's saws quoting a remarkably low price; a price at which there is little or no profit to them, sometimes a loss, but here is the secret: they will follow with a cut of a handsome saw another name or brand, probably their own and oh! the tale that goes with that saw, the description is wonderful—it will cut going and coming both sides up or down, work while you rest, cut wood, nails or butter, goodness only knows what it won't do, and then it only costs 25c more than the ordinary common, (yet very popular) Disston saws.

Now you may depend that there are ten, yes twenty, of the latter sold to every one of the former, regardless of the fact that the price is 25c more, quality 100 per cent less and cost 50 per cent or more less. Therein learn a lesson, study these catalogues and you will be able to quote such goods and offer such inducements that your customers will soon learn by practical demonstration the fallacy of the mail order claims. A suggestion, occasionally reverse the order of things. Quote a few uncommon lines, goods not advertised and follow up in a very ordinary, matter of fact way, as though it were a common occurrence, with bargain prices on all standard trade mark advertised goods.

THIS IS A FACT

"Your railway freight rates, especially for long distances, are so low as to startle European experts." These were the words of a German delegate to the recent International Railway Congress in Washington. He was correct. The average charge per ton per mile on the railways of the United States has dropped from 1.99 cents in 1870 to 0.77 cents in 1904. That is, the rate has shrunk from about 2 cents a third of a century ago to a little less than 8 mills today. On the other hand, the average rate per ton per mile on the British railways is 1.85 cents now; Germany's is 2.1 cents, or higher than that of the United States in 1870, while the rates in Italy, Austria, and some of the other European countries are higher than in Germany. Here is one reason why our government needs to go very cautiously in its program of rate regulation. Governmental meddling with the railways has not been the success in Europe that some American advocates of supervision in this country pretend. Moreover, the railway interest has a vastness with which is unapproached elsewhere. There are 214,000 miles of main-trunk railway in the United States today and only 180,000 miles in all Europe. As our people get the benefit of the low railway rates and the efficient service here, they will demand that Congress use tact and intelligence when it takes up the question, in the extra session in October, of governmental supervision over the American railway system.

BOOM JANESVILLE.

The organization of Janesville Business Men who have decided to boom the city have a good subject to work on. Janesville has an ideal location, an ideal position in southern Wisconsin for becoming the trading and business center of this section of the state. What is needed is good conscientious hustling by a good lot of hustlers who aim to place Janesville in the position it deserves. First in southern Wisconsin. There is no reason why Janesville cannot add several thousand to its population within the next five years and increase its business interests three-fold. The project of the new organization means a bigger and better Janesville and should receive generous encouragement from all men who have the city's interests at heart. There is always room for industries, more residents in Janesville and the association will see that Janesville is put to the fore where she belongs.

That advertising pays even in dull months has been exemplified by the business done last Saturday at the Lowell store and by the Ziegler company. Both firms had good ads in the paper Friday and the results Saturday were astonishing even to the advertiser. It pays to advertise and make business.

In the connection of advertising it might be said that every time Janesville is mentioned in a newspaper throughout the state it means an additional booster for Janesville. Thousands read of the Nonesuch Bros. circus east, west and south and it helped to make the city known. Shake off the old lethargy and be up and doing.

With Mr. Root in the cabinet again things will hum. Root and Taft are a pair of hard workers who make things hum when they get at it.

Roosevelt is spending a quiet summer at Oyster Bay. That is he is not as strenuous as he might be if he were out hunting.

Wisconsin stands well to the front in the list of states that are up and doing.

Ready for a boom? Who is? Janesville is. Start in now while the irons are hot and push matters.

The Gazette stands for everything that will help Janesville come to the front where she belongs.

PRESS COMMENT.

Chicago Record-Herald: A Wisconsin boy saved four lives from death by drowning the other day. The laws of Wisconsin make it impossible for him to marry them all.

Madison Democrat: The world is leaning strongly to be practical side these days. Up at St. Paul two hangings are arranged as an educational feature of a convention of sheriffs.

Appleton Crescent: It might be as well to remember that the mahogany tinted arms exhibited so proudly today, won't look so well with the pink ball room dress next winter—and it don't come off.

Racine Journal: Things must be getting rather rank in the Chicago police department when Chief O'Neill defends his course in appointing men who had previously been discharged for leaving blackmail on divekeepers.

Milwaukee Sentinel: And now comes Professor Howard of the University of Nebraska with the charge that honorary degrees are a species of graft in education. What a wonderful elastic term "graft" is becoming to be sure!

Milwaukee Wisconsin: The resignation of a country official with a salary of $5,000 is not worth the observation in politics that "few die and none resign."

Superior Telegram: The Milwaukee Journal says that an editor is as much a representative of the people as if he had been elected editor by their votes. Possibly—but there are plenty of editors who would have a hard time getting elected.

Menasha Record: "A feast of reason and a flow of soul" is the way an old philosopher defined a speech series. If he had lived to this day and heard popular speakers, he would have called it "an orgy of unreason and an overflow of howl."

Appleton Post: If conviction and imprisonment generally follow the swarms of indictments of "good fellows" that are being issued in Milwaukee, there is little likelihood that Dave Rose will be a candidate for another term as mayor, or if he should be there will no chance whatever of his election.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The nerve of some of these fake advertisers is astonishing. For example, one clever fellow is advertising to send for ten cents a copy of an advertisement that "has produced a peek of dimes," and to each sucker who applies is sent a copy of the same "ad" which induced him to bite.

Milwaukee Wisconsin: The grand jury is cutting out a prolonged period of activity for the district attorney and his office force, and incidentally for the courts. Unless there are convictions as a result of the trials, of the accused, the taxpayer will have occasion to use the boodler's query, "What is there in it for me?"

Menasha Record: The new rate commission is being petitioned to grant favors to a dozen different interests, some by the way that cried for the law. But how can the commission permit these discriminations that it is the purpose of the law to avoid?

Neenah Times: It would appear from the address made at state university commencement, and from the news items in nearly every paper in this country, that grafting has secured a sure foothold in nearly every city, great or small, in this country. Where will it all lead to?

Eau Claire Telegram: A Milwaukee newspaper reporter is accused at "putting up" the scheme whereby members of a county ring were to escape prosecution. It is a cold day when a newspaper man can tell Milwaukee professionals what to do in the art of grafting.

Racine Journal: Whenever public sentiment is aroused sufficiently to demand the authorities of our cities to insure a quiet Fourth of July, abolish the deadly firearm and destructive pistol, and terminate the dangerous cannon cracker, then the quiet Fourth will come and not before.

Boston Journal: A New Bedford man whose ice house burned up the other day now sues the city for damages on that ground of inefficient fire department service. This is a new wrinkle in municipal paternalism.

Milwaukee News: The reports from the interior of the state indicate that there would be a fine crop of hay if the farmer could mow it from flat boats.

El Paso Herald: It is an ill wind, etc.—Buffalo is accumulating money out of Castro's pernickities. Since he entered the market and began selling asphalt from its own deposits at that, independent contractors have had a chance to make out rate bids. And one of them, using Venezuelan bitumen, gets the contract at 74 cents a yard as against the trust's bid of 80. Last year when the octopus hadn't a trouble in the world, the price was $1.25.

La Crosse Chronicle: You are behind the times if you do not keep up to the minute. Watch the newspaper. We have reached a day of deeds. We are no longer "standing pat." We are moving at a terrific rate. The newspaper keeps you informed. The newspaper gives you the facts. You should study them and draw your conclusions. You cannot be a credit to the community unless you know and think about these things, and this includes men, women and children.

Evening Wisconsin: Certain enthusiastic country editors who have been invited to foregather with William Jennings Bryan at Madison, Wisconsin, on the 28th of the present month, affirm their belief that "it will be the most important assemblage of Democrats which has been held in the Northwest for fifty years. Not exactly—but the most self-important, perhaps. Judging by the returns of recent elections, it won't be the easiest thing in the world to collect a very large number of democrats who are bona-fide inhabitants of Wisconsin.

Exchange: It is fortunate that the rottenness in life insurance companies has been uncovered at a time when the country is prosperous and in a healthy financial condition. Under less favorable conditions a panic might thus easily be precipitated that would demoralize all business and be indefinitely prolonged. There is now some hope that these insurance companies will be purged of their rascally practices whereby their policy holders have been deprived of their just dues, long before a period of business depression arrives.

Green Bay Gazette: Bryan has once more invaded Wisconsin and as was to have been expected is singing the praises of Governor La Follette. He confesses, however, that the governor is not a democrat, although he has many of the earmarks of one. It is his opinion that he is the greatest reformer in the republican party, but then he does not consider the republican party one of reform. He winds up the batch of opinions he hands down with the remark that La Follette cannot be smothered in the senate and that he will be heard from there, by which he shows that he is really acquainted with the governor.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The story to the effect that Secretary Wilson will resign from the cabinet owing to the cotton leak scandal, it appears has already been discredited. Just why the secretary should resign, his critics have failed to explain. He set an investigation in motion, discharged the culprit and is now determined to hunt out such other rascals as may have become attached to the department. These are certainly not high crimes in the eyes of anyone but the offenders, and they don't count. Then there is another thing to be remembered, and that is the fact that Secretary Wilson is a faithful official and no quitter.

BODY RECOVERED
AT FIVE O'CLOCK

Remains of Arthur Smith, Who Was Drowned in River, Sent to Chicago This Afternoon.

After a long search conducted by City Marshal Constock, Officer John Brown, F. P. Plerson, and others, the body of Arthur Smith, who was drowned in the river, was recovered at five o'clock yesterday afternoon near the Pratt place, quite a distance below the portion of the river where the boat capsized, by Richard Joleas and Bert Wheelock, who are identified with the company of gypsies camping at the stone quarry. The remains were at once taken to Kimball's morgue and an effort made to communicate with the boy's father, George Smith, who resides at 505 Warren avenue, Chicago. In the clothes were found a small amount of money, a pass from Chicago to Koshong station and return made out to the account of the land department, and a fifteen- or twenty-trip ticket between Chicago and Austin, Ill., made out in favor of Arthur B. Smith and his brother. The body was shipped to Chicago on the 3:15 train this afternoon, without any funeral services.

Clarence Davey and the Smith boy went up-river yesterday morning to spend the day and land about a mile beyond the bridge, just above Mole's grove. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Dunwiddle and Miss Evelyn Hummel were picnicking in the locality and invited the two boys to dinner. About twenty minutes to one they started back, hastening their return for fear that Miss Anna E. Davey, 134 Terrace street, who, would be expecting them home, might be worried. Young Davey had rowed the rather cranky boat upstream and readily agreed when the Smith boy, who had had no experience with the oars, asked to try his hand on the return trip.

They were 75 feet from shore when, in attempting to turn, the boat tipped, filled with water, and upset. Davey clung to the overturned craft but young Smith put out for the shore. He was a poor swimmer and his clothes impeded his movements. A few feet away he went down. Mrs. Dunwiddle witnessed the upset and called to Mr. Dunwiddle, who reached the shore just as the unfortunate youth went down the third time. He called to the Davey boy to hold onto the boat and shortly thereafter the latter was picked up by Capt. Parks and his launch.

ENGINEER RAN TOO
FAST NEAR EDGERTON

Locomotive on the Fish Train Nearly Had an Accident—Was Disabled.

While howling along between Milton Junction and Edgerton on its way back to Madison the state fish commission's car, bearing Lieut. Gov. Davidson and the members of the commission, yesterday morning narrowly escaped being wrecked and injuring its passengers. In hitting up speed to make a record run to Madison the engineer put too much of a strain on his machine, and one of the cylinder heads blew out, letting one of the drive bars loose and allowing it to swing around in a highly dangerous way to those in the engine and fish car. The engineer, however, immediately applied the brakes and brought the train to a quick stop. No one was hurt. The conductor walked four miles to a telephone to call another engine. The lieutenant governor and commissioners were on a tour of inspection of the state fish hatcheries.

CURRENT NEWS NOTES.

Woe for Bslot Saloon-Man: At Bslot Saturday evening the mayor and several aldermen walked in on George Moran, proprietor of one of the most prominent bars, fifteen minutes after the closing hour and found his place still open and in operation. It is said that he will be summoned before the council at the next meeting to show cause why his license shall not be taken from him.

Won a Gold Medal: A. P. Burnham, who participated in the National Whist tournament in Chicago last week, came home with a gold medal awarded him for winning with Mrs. E. E. Hunt of Chicago, the high score for Saturday morning's play. One of the features of the tournament was the exceptionally high order of talent manifested by the ladies. With some coaching Mr. Burnham believes that the ladies of Janesville would be able to defeat the best of the gentlemen players here, unless the latter's present form should be greatly improved at the same time.

Chautauqua Dock: Capt. W. H. Merrill and others have completed a very commodious and suitable dock for the launches and steamboats which are to land passengers at the Chautauqua grounds.

Neenah Times: A Fond du Lac paper quotes Bishop Grafton as stating, in reply to a question as to what he thought in regard to the statement made by Rector J. W. Greenwood of Oshkosh, that he regarded the establishing by Bishop Grafton of a Benedictine monastery as a step backward and toward medievalism, that: "I decline to say anything upon Mr. Greenwood's statements. I do not regard his religious opinions of any importance." And yet Rev. J. W. Greenwood is a very distinguished, popular and much esteemed rector of an Episcopal church of Oshkosh, probably the largest in his diocese.

BIG ATTENDANCE OF PEDAGOGUES

MORE THAN A HUNDRED AND FIFTY AT INSTITUTE.

LARGEST EVER HELD HERE

Assistant State Superintendent Borden Pronounces It One of Best in Wisconsin.

What is probably the largest teachers' institute ever held in this city for the two school districts of Rock county is now being conducted in the high school building. Upon the enrollment yesterday morning when the first session opened there were one hundred and fifty-four names, which is equal to the usual total attendance. In former years the first roll call showed but a hundred which grew to about a hundred and fifty by the end of the first week. This year it is expected that the number will grow to two hundred or more before Friday.

The attending pedagogues and those who are studying to become rural school teachers come from the cities, towns, villages and country districts throughout the county. No Examination Fee. Some reason for this unprecedented attendance may be found in the fact that to write on the examinations no dollar fee is required as formerly. In past years numbers who were undecided as to their future occupation failed to take the tests. The last legislature enacted a law which exempts those who write from the tax for the institute and places it upon the county. Rock county now pays to the county school superintendents one dollar for every graded school position under them, which number in all two hundred and five. About one-third of those at the institute have never had experience in teaching and their chances for securing positions this next school year depend largely upon their work in the institute, each study being a preparation for one of the fourteen examination standings required of each teacher.

Telephone for Conductors. Four conductors were originally secured for the institute, but the attendance being so much larger than expected it was found necessary to secure one more conductor and J. P. Bergen, superintendent of schools at Mineral Point, was telegraphed for, arriving this morning and immediately commencing his instructing work. Superintendent Buel is the leading conductor and his assistants, besides Professor Bergen, are F. I. Douma of Wausau, R. J. Eddy of Sun Prairie, and A. A. Upham of Watertown. The newly appointed assistant superintendent of schools, Borden of Madison, inspected the institute yesterday, and this morning pronounced it one of the best in Wisconsin.

The Subjects Studied. The teachers are engaged in class exercises and are receiving academic instruction with the professional side emphasized. The class subjects are: upper form reading, primary reading, agriculture, language, constitution, United States history, geography, spelling, literature, library work, pedagogy and arithmetic.

BRIEF BITS OF LOCAL NEWS

Makes Appointment. Edward Williams of Madison has been appointed a member of the state board of pharmacy in place of Edward Menges of the same city, resigned. Mr. Williams was endorsed by the recent state meeting of druggists.

Broodhead Boy Busy. In the Camp Douglas dispatch relative to the work of the state militia on the range target work the following paragraph relates to a Broodhead boy who is there, though not a member of the state guard: "Among those working on the ranges today was Clayton K. M. Murdoch of Broodhead. Mr. Murdoch is not a member of the National guard; in fact he is a junior in the Agricultural college in Madison, but he has developed so many fine soldierly qualities that Col. C. A. Curtis, the commandant of the cadets of the state university, has brought him over here to take a course of instruction under Col. Graham, with a view to placing him in charge of the shooting by the students, with honors in his possession in the shape of a commission."

Picnic. The King's Daughters of the Baptist church will have a picnic at Mrs. Wallace Skinner's country home Thursday, July 20, to which all members are invited. A conveyance will be at the depot for those arriving on the morning for those leaving on the west side and one at the Wisconsin street, for those leaving on the east side.

Crystal Camp. The members of Crystal Camp No. 132, R. N. of A., who wish to visit Mr. and Mrs. Warren Haskins will meet at C. W. Kemmerer's livery barn Thursday evening. A bus will leave the barn at 7 o'clock and one at 7:30. Ladies please carry cake.

Will Hold Services. Rev. T. B. Stoval, pastor of the A. M. E. church of the Beloit circuit, purposes to hold weekly services in Janesville each Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. The services will be held in the Mary Kimball mission for the present. It is hoped a regular mission may be established here in the near future, as there are thirty-five colored persons in Janesville and the immediate vicinity.

Notice to G. A. R. There will be a half-hour service on Thursday for all persons desiring to attend the Old Soldiers' picnic at Ho-No-Ne-Gah park. The round trip has been fixed at sixty-five cents.

Attacked Mail-Carriers. Reference was made yesterday to an alleged call on one of the officers to kill a supposed mad dog at 200 Jackson street, which on investigation proved to be only a stray dog which the parties in question wished to get rid of. These parties deny that any such attempt was made to molest the police. The canine, they assert, was a vicious beast which attacked mail-carriers and other wayfarers and could not be driven away. It was a shepherd dog which came in from the country and was disposed of by the police last evening.

ASSAULT CASE IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Criminal Action Brought Against James Quinn of Beloit, on Trial Today.

In municipal court today before a jury consisting of William Bates, S. C. Marker, August Lutz, Harry Olson, L. C. Wood, George Hanthorn, David Barless, Charles Brooks, Peter Caldwell, E. H. Hardy, James Scott, and George Robinson, is being tried the criminal action brought against James Quinn of Beloit on complaint of Frank Freeman of that city, the charge being assault with intent to do great bodily injury. The brawl occurred in a saloon and Freeman claims that Quinn chewed one of his ears, struck him with a beer-glass, and inflicted other injuries. District Attorney W. O. Newhouse is conducting the prosecution and T. S. Nolan appears for the defendant. It was expected that the case would be finished this afternoon.

MORTUARY MATTERS

Christopher O'Rourke Undertaker Dan Ryan last evening received a telegram from Denver, Colorado, announcing the death at that place of Christopher O'Rourke. The remains were shipped last night and are expected to arrive here tomorrow noon. The deceased was an old settler of Protville and is well known in that part of the county. Notice of the funeral will be given later.

Mrs. Margaret Fox Funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. Margaret Fox were held this morning at ten o'clock from St. Patrick's church, Rev. Biers officiating. The pallbearers were Samuel Watson, D. Conway, J. Barrett, James Mooney, Peter Mooney, and Robert Heffernan. Interment was in Mount Olivet and the floral offerings were exceedingly beautiful.

WILL BOOM CITY AS IT SHOULD BE

NEW ASSOCIATION WITH THIS IN VIEW TO BE FORMED.

IT WILL BE INCORPORATED

To Look After the Interests of the City—Secure Factories and Increase Population.

Janesville is to be boomed. Janesville is to come to the fore as the leading city of southern Wisconsin. This was the decision reached at an informal meeting of several business men at the offices of the New Gas Light company last night. Not only is Janesville to be boomed but a new association of boomers is to be organized, an association whose sole object is to make Janesville grow, make Janesville the leading manufacturing city of this section of the state. There was much enthusiasm shown last evening and the thirty odd gentlemen present discussed the pros and cons of the question with the unanimous opinion that Janesville deserves help in its growing process and that to aid the city an association with this in view would be a good thing.

Committee Appointed. With this idea in view two committees—one on organization consisting of A. M. Fisher, W. G. Wheeler and A. E. Bingham, the other to recommend officers and directors consisting of F. H. Jackman, F. S. Sheldon, R. M. Bosworth, Geo. D. Simpson and David Atwood—were appointed. It was also decided to hold the second meeting to perfect the organization on Friday evening, at which time both committees will be ready to report and definite action will be taken. It was the sense of the meeting that the funds be raised in the form of memberships valued at five dollars each. These memberships to one carry with them the right for one vote. Thus if a man subscribed two hundred dollars he would have forty votes at the meetings to elect the board of directors. These membership certificates are to be assessable five dollars annually.

Mutual Discussion. The meeting last evening was planned by the suggestion of plans and a general discussion of what to do to make Janesville grow. A. M. Fisher stated the purpose of the meeting tersely when he said that in the growth of the city and the villages throughout the state in the past ten years and something should be done to remedy this fault. "The question of forming an association with this in view was then brought up and to make the meeting regular, A. M. Fisher was elected chairman and F. H. Wortendyke secretary. After a lengthy discussion it was decided to form an incorporated association, elect officers and a board of directors who should act for the association and hold weekly sessions and committees to further this idea were chosen. After the organization is completed the subscription books are to be thrown open to the citizens generally and everyone who is interested in seeing Janesville grow will be asked to subscribe.

General Public Interested. Any association that will bring factories to Janesville, bring about an increased population, is a good thing for the city and should receive the hearty support of the citizens generally. Madison has its Forty Thousand Club, Milwaukee its Business Men's Association, El Paso, Texas, its Quilen Sabe club and other cities similar organizations and they are building up their respective cities. Janesville is in an ideal location for a boom and its steady growth of the past decade is not as large as that of its sister cities. It is time to do something and the new organization means to do it with the help of all who desire to see the city grow.

WENT TO SLEEP AND WAS HIT BY TRAIN

Chicago Youth Struck by Fast Freight South of the City Last Night.

While sitting on the rails of the main track of the St. Paul road at Gane, south of the city last night, James Treska, a nineteen-year-old Chicago boy, was struck by a fast freight and thrown several feet, breaking an arm, involving a severe scalp wound and injuring his right leg. Treska was a passenger on a freight that had drawn onto the siding at Gane to let the fast freight pass through and evidently he had stepped from the train and seated himself on the main track to cool off. He fell asleep and was struck by the oncoming train without warning. He was brought to the city on the train, arriving at one-thirty, and taken to the Palmer hospital. This morning he was resting easier and his recovery is expected. He had in his pocket a bill of goods for a carload of freight shipped to Clay, a small town near Black River Falls, and a union card in the Chicago Workers' union. His story is that he had charge of the car of merchandise and was traveling north on the train to Clay, where he had been promised work.

Judge Fiffeld in Peril. While attempting to make J. W. Sweeney's new yacht fast to a buoy at Lake Kegonsa yesterday afternoon Judge C. L. Fiffeld and Clarence Brown were overtaken by a squall which overturned the craft. A rescuing party was soon on the scene and no serious damage resulted to men or craft.

At Mississippi Links: At the Mississippi links this afternoon the girls are enjoying the Unique handicapped contest announced some days ago. There is a large attendance. Supper will be served at six and a dance follows.

Dr. Henry Faville, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of La Crosse, and his son, Theodore Faville, who has been appointed a professor in Roberts college at Constantinople, left for Europe on Monday.

OLD SOLDIERS PLAN A GREAT OCCASION

Their Annual Picnic Promises to Eclipse Any Previous Attempt.

The basket picnic to be held at Ho-No-Ne-Gah park on Thursday of this week, 20th inst., by the Janesville, Beloit and Rockford posts of the Grand Army of the Republic promises to be an affair of large attendance. The veterans are taking a deep interest in this, the third of their annual gatherings of this character. A picnic in the woods or forest on the clean, fresh green, under the shade of giant oaks, elms and maples, is a most sensible, healthful, and pleasant indulgence at this season of the year. It is to be a basket picnic in every sense of the word. There will be no general table on this occasion. The "boys" fill their baskets with what they desire, elect their generals, select their cozy corner or bench, or circle on the green; they designate their own hour for eating, and get coffee with "trimmings" of the proprietor of the grounds. Those not desiring to take baskets can get such supplies as they desire at the park. It is said that Col. Lawler will come up from Rockford with three hundred veterans and a large drum corps from that grand post, which with their wives and friends will make a party of five or six hundred. Beloit will turn out liberally, and Janesville with goodly numbers, who with the G. A. R. men here and about, will make a fairly good sized army of veterans. The picnic is given under the auspices of the firm of Profit & Loss, as is said. Profit to all who do go and Loss to all who do not go. It is a peace gathering. If the weather clerk will be on his good behavior on the 20th inst. the park will be thronged with pleasant faces. There is room for all. The old settlers of northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin held their annual gathering there one year ago. The attendance was seven thousand. The Lombard quartette of Rockford post, whose personnel is of Rockford's best citizens, wealthy and prominent, will be in evidence and will compensate anyone for a day's journey on foot to hear.

DOUBLE FUNERAL SERVICES HELD

REMAINS OF MAJOR AND MRS. ROCKWOOD BROUGHT HERE.

BURIED BESIDE DAUGHTER

Elks Ceremonies for Mr. Rockwood, and Rev. Case Officiated Over Mrs. Rockwood.

Beside their daughter, laid at rest many years ago in the family lot in Oak Hill cemetery, were tenderly interred today all that is mortal of the late Major and Mrs. Rockwood of Portage, former residents of this city. The bodies were brought here at half past ten o'clock from the home city and accompanied by a number of Elks, who were in charge, and a few friends and relatives. The funeral cortege moved directly from the St. Paul passenger depot to the cemetery, where over the grave brief ceremonies were conducted. The rites were performed by J. H. Wells, exalted ruler of the P. E. of Elks and number 675 of the B. P. of Elks and Chaplain J. E. Jones, ex-Mayor of Portage. The floral tributes from the Elks, other organizations and numerous friends were very beautiful and profuse, covering each casket. The pall bearers for both Mr. and Mrs. Rockwood were from the Elks' lodge and each wore in his buttonhole the purple flower of the organization. They were: W. M. Carroll, J. H. Wells, J. E. Jones, Edward Bloomfield, R. C. Curtis and Joseph Bloomfield.

The Accompanying Mourners. Among the mourners were the two sons of the deceased, H. C. Rockwood, editor of the Portage Democrat, and George Rockwood of Yuma, Arizona; a nephew of the deceased, Edward A. Rockwood of Portage; other relatives, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Twining of Bradhead and Mr. and Mrs. Austin of the same place; Albert Salishury, president of a Whitewater normal school, who was a college friend of Mr. Rockwood at Milton, and a comrade in the old Thirtieth Wisconsin volunteer regiment during the civil war; Mrs. J. E. Jones, Mrs. H. J. Puffel, and Mrs. George Acres of Portage. A number of members of the W. H. Sargent Post, Grand Army of the Republic, who served in the rebellion with the Major, met the train on which the remains were brought here and attended the services at the grave.

Services in Portage. Funeral services for Major Rockwood were held in Portage last Friday afternoon, being conducted by the Elks of that city in their hall. Exalted Ruler Wells officiated and an eulogy on the deceased was given by Rev. Case of the Methodist Episcopal church, who attended Milton college with both Mr. and Mrs. Rockwood, and was an intimate friend of the family. The body was to have been brought here for burial Saturday morning but because of the serious condition of Mrs. Rockwood the remains were placed in a vault. Mrs. Rockwood followed her husband to the world beyond Sunday. Services over her remains were held from the Portage Methodist church yesterday afternoon at half-past two, Rev. Case officiating.

LIVING TOO HASTILY
AMERICAN WOMEN BREAK DOWN
Irregularities and Female Derangements Regulated—Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Owing to our mode and manner of living, and the nervous haste of every woman to accomplish just so much each day, it is said that there is not one woman in twenty-five but what suffers with some derangement of the female organism, and this is the secret of so many unhappy homes.

No woman can be amiable, light-hearted and happy, a joy to her husband and children, and perform the duties incumbent upon her, when she is suffering with backache, headache, nervousness, sleeplessness, bearing-down pains, displacement of the womb, spinal weakness or ovarian troubles.

Irritability and snappy retorts take the place of pleasantness, and all sunshine is driven out of the home, and lives are wrecked by woman's great enemy—vexatious trouble.

Read this letter:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I was troubled for eight years with irregularities which broke down my health and brought on extreme nervousness and despondency. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved to be the only medicine which helped me. Day by day I improved in health while taking it until I was entirely cured. I can attend to my social and household duties and thoroughly enjoy life once more, as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me well again without a ache or a pain."

Mrs. Chester Curry, 42 Saratoga Street, East Boston, Mass.

At the first indication of ill health, painful or irregular menstruation, pain in the side, headache, backache, bearing-down pains, nervousness or "the blues," secure at once a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin its use.

If you cannot eat, sleep or work, feel weak, cross and ugly, take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea this month. A tonic for the sick. There is no remedy equal to it. 35 cents, tea or tablets.

THIS IS TO BE A WONDERFUL YEAR

For Hay and Corn, Says H. L. McNamara—Reproves Those Who Complain of Hot Spell.

"It's great weather for the hay," said H. L. McNamara reprovingly when someone grouched about the heat. "Some of the earlier crops were ruined but those who eat the latter part of last week are assured of good returns if these fair days continue. It's good for the corn crop, too. A traveling man from Indiana who was here yesterday suggested that Rock county wasn't going to have any corn this season. He jumped at this conclusion because he had noticed that it was all tasseled out along the Wabash, whereas the plumes had not yet put in an appearance in this section. Assurance was given him that things would look different two or three weeks from now and that a banner crop was confidently anticipated in this locality." Mr. McNamara believes that this is to be one of the most prosperous years. In recent history for farmer and merchant. In the immediate vicinity of the city only a third as much acreage has been devoted to tobacco as in the years immediately preceding the advent of the sugar factory but this percentage of decrease does not hold for the county. The crop will be smaller but it will be a fine one from present indications and higher prices will obtain. Right in Janesville more building is contemplated at this time than ever before. Threatened labor troubles before May 1, which failed to materialize to any great extent, delayed the plans of some who are now getting ready to make the most of the remaining weeks before the snow flies and the cold winds blow again.

POLICY-HOLDERS TO CONTROL

Agrees to Relinquish Hyde Purchase on Payment of Investment with Interest at 4 Per Cent Any Time Within Two Years.

New York, July 18.—Thomas F. Ryan is pledged in writing to surrender to the Equitable Life Assurance society at the discretion of the trustees, at any time they may so desire within two years, his majority stock holding in the Equitable, to the end, that the corporation may be absolutely unmuzzled in the sole interest of its policy holders.

This is the information learned from a source in the Equitable building here, and it is generally credited which has been found trustworthy. According to this report, a definite agreement has been made under the terms of which Mr. Ryan contracts to return to the Equitable the stockholdings purchased by him, for $2,500,000 from James H. Hyde on payment to him of the actual cost-price of the shares, plus 4 per cent interest on the $2,500,000 for the period that may have elapsed between the purchase and the surrender.

New Directors Ask Pledge.
It was said that several of the newly selected members of the board of directors had taken the attitude that nothing but the definite assurance of actual mutualization in the early future would effectually restore public confidence, and that they had declined to permit the use of their names until they had been convinced such a pledge had been made by Mr. Ryan to the trustees, and that whenever the necessary legislative action might be taken for the modification of the charter and the retirement of the stock, Mr. Ryan would stand ready to retire from the society's control.

They consented to serve in the directorate, it is asserted, only on being assured that such a covenant is in existence and that it may be made operative at the volition of the trustees at any time within two years.

Morton Will Not Speak.
When this report was repeated to Paul Morton, chairman of the executive committee, he refused either to affirm or deny it. He merely said: "I have nothing to say on that or any other subject."

James W. Alexander, former president of the Equitable, is still in a critical condition in Unkaway sanitarium, within three miles of The Oaks, the summer residence of James H. Hyde. Surrounded by a staff of nurses and watched every moment by his own physician, the patient is rarely conscious of his surroundings and requires constant attention.

INSANE MAN ATTACKS PEOPLE ON THE STREET

Milwaukeean Knocks Out Four Men and Terrorizes Women and Children When Reason Departs.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 18.—While promenading Chestnut street Benjamin Marx suddenly became insane and, attacking pedestrians on the sidewalk, knocked out four men and spread terror among women and children by screaming that he was being attacked and would be killed.

He was seized by a half dozen stalwart residents of the street and in the struggle to apprehend him his coat and vest were torn from his body, but the combined strength of the six men finally overpowered him. He was carried to a drug store, where sedatives were employed, and the police were summoned.

Before the arrival of the patrol wagon Marx had another attack and only the timely intervention of his captors prevented him from demolishing the drug store. Quietening remedies were administered to him at the Emergency hospital, but the constant attendance of a nurse was found necessary. His violence was only subdued after a long time. Fully exhausted, he finally sunk into sleep.

COTTON PROBE TO BE THOROUGH

District Attorney Beach Has Full Power to Conduct Investigation.

President Not to Interfere

Mr. Roosevelt Will Delay Inquiry Into Agricultural Department Affairs Until Prosecution in Holmes Case Is Out of the Way.

Washington, July 18.—"Hands off" is the president's order in the cotton report investigation. It has become generally understood that United States District Attorney Beach is to continue his inquiry along lines of his own initiative and unhampered by interference from the white house or anywhere else.

Mr. Beach is now in New York for the purpose of interrogating Broker Van Riper and the other New Yorkers involved in the scandal. It is pretty well known that Van Riper did not tell all he knows about the cotton report scandal during the first investigation, and the district attorney is now endeavoring to secure further evidence which will assist in the prosecution of former Associate Solicitor General.

Sensational Rumors.
Sensational stories were published here that President Roosevelt has ordered the Keep commission to make a thorough investigation of the entire agricultural department. It was also stated that Chairman Keep of the commission had an important conference with Secretary Wilson.

There is not the slightest foundation for these stories, according to Mr. Keep, who declared that he had not received any instructions from the president and had not seen Secretary Wilson for two weeks.

Beach Has Free Hand.
That there will be a thorough investigation of affairs in the Agricultural Department no one doubts, but the president will not interfere with the inquiry now being conducted by District Attorney Beach, and until that official has concluded his labors the president will do nothing more toward exposing the scandal.

Secretary Wilson has begun an investigation of a report that certain women employees of his department have sold questions to be asked, in civil service examinations prior to the holding of such examinations.

Paid Liberally for Service.
A complaint has been made that this woman for several years has been aiding applicants for positions in this manner and that in a number of cases the applicants have paid liberally for the service. The examinations alleged to have been thus manipulated were for positions requiring technical knowledge and the questions were prepared in the department.

Secretary Wilson is somewhat troubled as to how he will prepare another cotton crop report in the place of the one which has involved the department in scandal. He is anxious to make another report, but he is hampered by the lack of funds.

Weak Stomach.

A weak stomach is most frequently caused by the overworked and exhausted nervous system.

The power that runs the stomach is the nerve force sent to it from the brain through the nerves. When the nerves are weak or exhausted the supply of energy is insufficient and the action of the stomach is impaired, and results in imperfect digestion—dyspepsia.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve increases nerve force. It strengthens and builds up nerve tissue, gives vigor to the nerves and muscles of the stomach; this produces a healthy activity.

Nerve allays the inflammation, heals the membranes, and makes the stomach strong and healthy. There is nothing that so quickly gives energy to the whole system as Restorative Nerve.

"I can't say enough for Dr. Miles' Nerve. I don't know what it will do for others, but it certainly cured me. I was a nervous wreck, and now I am as well as I ever was. Two mysterious failures to relieve me, but in three or four days after taking Nerve I was much relieved. Four bottles made me a sound man, at the cost of $4.00."

JAMES R. HART, Detroit, Mich.

Dr. Miles' Nerve is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.

HAS BEEN GREAT TRAVELER

Aged Priest in Sleepy Old Spanish Town Possessed Rare Secrets.

Milwaukee, July 18.—So much has been said about the Great Cooper, the wealthy young philanthropist, who has been one of the most talked of men in the city during his visit here, that every public act of his daily life is followed with interest.

Although still a young man, he has been a great traveler, and he tells many interesting stories of his experiences. The fact that he gives away a considerable portion of his income and the method he has in his charitable work have contributed largely to his growing reputation, and he was asked what it was that influenced him in practicing the socialistic ideas to which he holds. "It is a story of an experience that I will remember as long as I live," he replied. "I first realized the debt a man owes to humanity only a few years ago. It was while I was traveling in Mexico that it was my good fortune to meet the man whose teachings have made me the socialist that I

CHAPTER XI.

"DIDN'T you think you'd better get out of this?" I asked Obermuller, as he came into the station a few minutes after I got there.

"No."

"I do."

"Because it won't do you any good to have your name mixed up with a thing like this."

"But it might do you some good."

"I didn't answer for a minute after that. I sat in my chair, my eyes bent on the floor. I counted the cracks between the chair and the floor of the office where the chief was busy with another case. I counted them six times, back and forth. Till my eyes were clear and my voice was steady."

"You're awfully good," I said, looking up at him as he stood by me. "You're the best fellow I ever knew. I didn't know men could be so good to women."

"But you'd better go—please. I'll be bad enough when the papers get hold of this, without having them lump you in with a bad lot like me."

He put his hand on my shoulder and gave it a quick little shake.

"Don't say that about yourself. You're not a bad lot."

"But you saw the purse."

"Yes, I saw it. But it hasn't proved anything to me but this: you're innocent, Nance, or you're crazy. If it's the first, I want to stand by you, little girl. If it's the second—good God! I've got to stand by you harder than ever."

Can you see me sitting there, Mag, in the bright, bare little room, with its electric lights, still in my white dress and big white hat, my pretty jacket fallen on the floor beside me? I could feel the sharp blue eyes of that detective Morris feeding on my miserable face. But I could feel, too, a warmth like wine poured into me from that big fellow's voice.

I put my hand up to him and he took it.

"If I'm innocent and can prove it, Fred Obermuller, I'll get even with you for—this."

"Do you want to do something for me now?"

"Do I?"

"Well, if you want to help me, don't sit there looking like the criminal ghost of the girl I know."

"The blood rushed to my face. Nance Olden, a sniveling coward! Me, showing the white feather—me, whimpering like a whipped puppy—me—Nance Olden!"

"You know," I smiled up at him. "I never did enjoy getting caught."

"Hush! But that's better."

Tell me now—

A buzzer sounded. The blue-eyed detective got up and came over to me. "Chief's ready," he said. "This way."

They stopped Obermuller at the door. But he pushed past them.

"I want to say just a word to you, chief," he said. "You remember me. I'm Obermuller, of the Vaudeville. If you'll send those fellows out and let me speak to you just a moment, I'll leave you alone with Miss Olden."

The chief nodded to the blue-eyed detective, and he and the other fellow went out and shut the door behind them.

"I want simply to call your attention to the absurdity and unreasonableness of this thing," Obermuller said, leaning up against the chief's desk, while he threw out his left hand with that big open gesture of his, "and to ask you to bear in mind, no matter what appearances may be, that Miss Olden is the most talented girl on the stage to-day; that in a very short time she will be at the top; that just now she is not suffering for lack of money; that she's not a high-roller, but a determined, hard-working little grind, and that if she did feel like taking a plunge, she knows that she could get all she wants from me even—"

"Even if you can't pay salaries when they're due, Obermuller?" The chief grinned under his white mustache.

"Even though the Trust is pushing me to the wall, going to such lengths that they're liable criminally as well as civilly, if I could only get my hands on proof of their rascality. It's true I can't pay salaries always when they're due, but I can still raise a few hundred to help a friend. And Miss Olden is a friend of mine. If you can prove that she took this money, you prove only that she's gone mad, but you don't."

"All right, Obermuller. You're not the lawyer for the defense. That'll come later—if it does come. I'll be glad to hear in mind all you've said, and much that you haven't."

"Thank you. Good night. . . I'll wait for you, Nance, outside."

"I'm going to ask you a lot of questions, Miss Olden," the old chief said, when we were alone. "Sit here, please. Morris tells me you've got more nerve than any woman that's ever come before me, so I needn't bother to reassure you. You don't look like a girl that's easily frightened. I have heard how you danced in the lobby of the Manhattan, how you guayed him at your flat, and were getting lunch and having a regular picnic of a time when—"

"When he found that purse."

"Exactly. Now, why did you do all that?"

"Why? Because I felt like it. I felt gay and excited—"

"Her husband."

"Not dreaming that that purse was sure to be found?"

"Not dreaming that there was such a purse in existence except from the detective's say-so, and never fancying for an instant that it would be found in my flat."

"Hm!" He looked at me from under his heavy, wrinkled old lids. "You don't get nice eyes from looking on the nasty things in this world, Mag."

"Why," I cried, "what kind of a girl could cut up like that when she was on the very edge of discovery?"

"A very smart girl—an actress; a good one; a clever thief who's used to bluffing. Of course," he added, softly, "you won't misunderstand me. I'm simply suggesting the different kinds of girl that could have done what you did. But, if you don't mind, I'll do the questioning. Nance Olden," he turned suddenly on me, his manner changed and threatening, "what has become of that $300?"

"Mr. Chief, you know just as much about that as I do."

I threw up my head and looked him full in the face. It was over now—all the shivering and trembling and fearing. Nance Olden's not a coward when she's fighting for her freedom; and fighting alone without any sympathizing friend to weaken her.

He returned the look with interest. "I may know," he said, insinuatingly.

"Possibly," I shrugged my shoulders.

No, it wasn't put on. There never yet was a man who bullied me that didn't rouse the fighter in me. I swore to myself that this old thief-catcher shouldn't rattle me.

"Doesn't it occur to you that under the circumstances a full confession"

"I MAY KNOW MORE."

might be the very best thing for you? I shouldn't wonder if these people would be inclined to be lenient with you if you'd return the money. Doesn't it occur—"

"It might occur to me if I had anything to confess—about this purse."

"How long since you've seen Mrs. Edward Ramsay?" He rushed the question at me.

I jumped.

"How do you know I've ever seen her?"

"I do know you have."

"I don't believe you."

"Thank you, neither do I believe you, which is more to the point. Come, answer the question: how long is it since you have seen the lady?"

I looked at him. And then I looked at my glove, and slowly pulled the fingers inside out, and then—then I giggled. Suddenly it came to me—that silly, little insane dodge of mine, the bishop's carriage that day; the girl who had lost her name; and the use all that affair might be to me if ever—

"I'll tell you if you'll let me think a minute," I said, sweetly. "It—it must be all of 15 months."

"Ah! You see I did know that you've met the lady. If you're wise you'll draw deductions as to other things I know that you don't think I do. . . And where did you see her?"

"In her own home."

"Called there," he sneered, "alone?"

"No," I said, very gently. "I went there, to the best of my recollection, with the bishop—yes, it was the bishop, Bishop Van Wageningen."

"Indeed!"

I could see that he didn't believe a word I was saying, which made me happily eager to tell him more.

"Yes, we drove up to the square one afternoon in the bishop's carriage—the fat, plum-colored one, you know. We had tea there—at least, I did. I was to have spent the night, but—"

"That's enough of that."

I chuckled. Yes, Mag Monahan, I was enjoying myself. I was having a run for my money, even if it was the last run I was to have.

"So it's 15 months since you've seen Mrs. Ramsay, eh?"

"Yes."

He turned on me with a roar.

"And yet it's only a week since you saw her at Mrs. Gates'?"

"Oh, no."

"No? Take care!"

"That night at Mrs. Gates' it was dark, you know, in the front room. I didn't see Mrs. Ramsay that night. I didn't know she was there at all till—"

"Till?"

"Till later I was told."

"Who told you?"

"Her husband."

"He threw down his pencil."

"Look here, this is no lark, young woman, and you needn't trouble yourself to weave any more fairy tales. Mrs. Ramsay is in a—she's very ill. His own wife hasn't seen him since that night, so you see you're lying uselessly."

"Really! So Edward didn't go back to Mrs. Gates' that night. Tut! tut! After his telephone message, too!"

"Now, assuming your innocence of the theft, Miss Olden, what is your theory; how do you account for the presence of that purse in your flat?"

"Now, you've hit the part of it that really puzzles me. How do you account for it; what is your theory?"

He got to his feet, pushing his chair back sharply.

"My theory, if you want to know it, is that you stole the purse; that your friend Obermuller believes you did; that you got away with the three hundred, or hid it away, and—"

"And what a stupid thief I must be, then, to leave the empty purse under my lounge!"

"How do you know it was empty?" he demanded, sharply.

"You said so. . . Well, you gave me to understand that it was, then. What difference does it make? It would be a still stupider thief who'd leave a full purse instead of an empty one under his own lounge."

"Yes; and you're not stupid, Miss Olden."

"Thank you. I'm sorry I can't say as much for you."

I couldn't help it. He was such a stupid. The idea of telling me that! Fred Obermuller believed me guilty! The idea of thinking me such a fool as to believe that! Such men as that make criminals. They're so fat-witted you positively ache—they so tempt you to pull the wool over their eyes. O, Mag, if the Lord had only made men cleverer, there'd be fewer Nancy Oldens.

The chief blew a blast at his speaking tube that made his purple cheeks seem about to burst. My shoulders shook as I watched him, he was so wrathful.

And I was still laughing when I followed the detective into the waiting room, where Obermuller was pacing the floor. At the sight of my smiling face he came rushing to me.

"Nance!" he cried.

"Orders are, Morris," came in a bellow from the chief at the door, "that no further communication be allowed between the prisoner and—"

Phew! All the pertness leaked out of me. Oh, Mag, I don't like that word, it stings—it binds—it cuts.

I don't know what I looked like then; I wasn't thinking of me. I was watching Obermuller's face. It seemed to grow old and thin and haggard before my eyes, as the blood drained out of it. He turned with an exclamation to the chief and—

And just then there came a long ring at the telephone.

"Why did I stand there? O, Mag, when you're on your way to the place I was bound for, when you know that before you'll set foot in this same bright room again, the hounds in half a dozen cities will have scratched clean every hiding place you've had, when your every act will be known and—oh, then, you wait, Mag, you wait for anything—anything in the world; even a telephone call that may only be bringing in another wretch like yourself; bound, like yourself, for the Toms."

The chief himself went to answer it. "Yes—what?" he growled. "Well, tell Long Distance to get busy. What's that? St. Francis—that's the jag ward, isn't it? Who is it? Who? Ramsay!"

I caught Obermuller's hand. "I don't hear you," the chief roared. "Oh—yes? Yes, we've got the thief, but the money—no, we haven't got the money. The deuce you say! Took it yourself? Out of your wife's purse—yes. But we've got the—What? Don't remember where you—"

"Steady, Nance," whispered Obermuller, grabbing my other hand. I tried to stand steady, but everything swayed and I couldn't hear the rest of what the chief was saying, though all my life seemed condensed into a listening. But I did hear when he jammed the receiver on the hook and faced us.

"Well, they've got the money. Ramsay took the purse himself, thinking it wasn't safe there under the spread where any servant might be tempted who chanced to uncover it. You'll admit the thing looked shady. The reason Mrs. Ramsay didn't know of it is because the old man's just come to his senses in a hospital and been notified that the purse was missing."

"I want to apologize to you, chief," I mumbled.

"For thinking me stupid? Oh, we were both—"

"No, for thinking me not stupid. I am stupid—stupid—stupid. The old fellow I told you about, Mr. O, and the way I telephoned him out of the flat that night—it was—"

"Ramsay!"

I nodded, and then crumbled to the floor.

It was then that they sent for you, Mag.

"Why didn't I tell it straight at the first, you dear old Mag? Because I didn't know the straight of it, then, myself. I was so heavy-witted I never once thought of Edward. He must have taken the bills out of the purse and then crammed them in his pocket while he was waiting there on the lounge and I was pretending to telephone and—"

But it's best as it is—oh, so best! Think, Mag. Two people who knew her—who knew her, mind—believed in Nancy Olden, in spite of appearances: Obermuller, while we were in the thick of it, and you, dear girl, while I was telling you of it.

Elihu Root.

John Hay's Successor Is a Thinking Machine—He Gets to the Bottom of Things, Then Acts—Now a Strong Presidential Possibility

Secretary of State

Careless of Public Opinion, Callous to Newspaper Comment, but Ridiculously Loyal to His Trust, He Goes Straight to the Point

Not a Novice, but Master of the Game of Statecraft and America's Greatest Lawyer—At the Helm During the Boxer War

ELIHU ROOT earns $200,000 a year as a lawyer. That puts him in a class by himself. Remarkable is the adjective that applies, if it ever applied to any man.

Mr. Root is to give up his princely income to accept a salary of $8,000 a year as secretary of state in President Roosevelt's cabinet. Which sentiment dictates the action—patriotism or ambition? Perhaps both.

In any event, the nation secures the talents of an unusual man. He will serve her well, for absolute loyalty to his cause has been one of Mr. Root's strongest characteristics. He becomes not only secretary of state, but a strong presidential possibility.

President Roosevelt realized that a strong man must succeed John Hay. A strong man was chosen. Five years as secretary of war showed that strength to the country. There is nothing spectacular about Root, nothing to take hold of the popular imagination. He is careless of public opinion, almost callous as to what the newspapers say of him. He is a thinking machine. He masters his proposition, sees what he wants to do clearly and goes ahead in a straight line to do it, regardless of what anybody else may think about it. Thorough is the word that describes him. Withal, he is tactful and diplomatic. He has wit, but is without humor. For the most part his attitude is deadly serious. He goes to the bottom

The newly appointed secretary of state was born on a college campus in the month of February, sixty years ago. His father was a member of the faculty of Hamilton college, Clinton, N. Y., from which institution the son graduated as valedictorian of his class at the age of nineteen. He then taught in the Rome academy for a year and graduated from the University Law school of New York city when twenty-two. He immediately entered the practice in New York and began to secure corporation cases almost from the start. He took little part in politics, but so strong a position had he secured at the bar that at the age of thirty-eight he was appointed by President Arthur United States district attorney for the southern district of New York. He only held this place for a trifle over two years, but so efficient was he and so many reforms did he inaugurate that his work attracted outside attention. The only political office he ever held was that of secretary of the Republican county committee of New York. In 1884 he was elected delegate at large to the state constitutional convention, in which body he held the important position of chairman of the judiciary committee. He was never a candidate for an elective office, in fact, is not much of the type that makes a popular candidate before the people. He is not exactly contemptuous of what may be thought of him, but sim-tions of his predecessor, Secretary Alger, there were charges of grafting in the war department, the Miles feud was on, the new colonial policy had to be formulated, the Cuban situation had to be dealt with, and reforms were demanded in the army itself. The new head of the war portfolio turned to these various problems as he would to knotty points in a law case. First he found a man on whom he could rely, a subordinate in the department who knew things and was honest. Then he began posting himself, until he knew the situation. Next he worked out the questions as his father had worked out mathematical problems.

The Philippine situation, of course, was the first thing that had to be met by Secretary Root. The decision had already been made to keep the islands. He frankly said in an interview that if he had been consulted at the time the treaty of Paris was being signed and had foreseen the complications he probably would not have advised the taking over of the archipelago, but since the policy was settled he had to make the best of it, put down the insurrection, establish civil government and prepare the natives so that ultimately they could govern themselves. Resolutely and thoroughly he undertook the task, and he did not leave the cabinet until he considered that he had it practically accomplished.

At one trying time in this work he was criticised from one end of the country to the other over certain alleged acts of army officers in the Philippines. At first the secretary paid little attention, but finally issued a general denial. The representative of an important and friendly paper went to him to get a more specific statement of the case.

"Why should I pay further attention to these reports?" asked the secretary. "They are not true. I have said so; that is enough."

"But," said the reporter, "they affect public opinion. You ought to have the support of the newspapers."

"What for?" replied the imperturbable Root. "Does that make any difference?"

Not very complimentary to the press that, but a rather luminous sidelight on the character of Elihu Root.

Witty and Keen at Parrying Questions.

Perhaps the reputation which the secretary gained for coldness came somewhat from his treatment of newspaper men. Always polite, but never betrayed into saying one word he did not wish to say, he parried questions like the keen lawyer that he is. Frequently a witticism would serve his point. When one young reporter wanted to know whether the president would disavow Minister Conger, and, if so, how, Root quickly responded: "I suppose he will send him a poisoned letter."

Again when Aguinaldo was captured, the same reporter wanted to know how Funston brought the Filipino chieftain in.

"He probably brought him in in his mouth," flung the secretary.

Any one who remembers how Roosevelt had to reprimand Funston for talking too much may see more than one point to that joke.

Some Creek Indians were hunting for Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock and by mistake strayed into the war department. When steered into the presence of the secretary, Root told them they had come to the wrong man.

"I have jurisdiction over navigable rivers," he said, "but not over Creeks."

Mr. Root is not much of a story teller, but here is one that he is said to have told:

A western judge about to pronounce sentence asked the prisoner:

"Have you ever been sentenced before?"

"No, your honor," said the criminal, bursting into tears.

"Well," said the judge, "don't cry. You're going to be now."

Trim and Wiry, Never Demonstrative.

In personal appearance Mr. Root is small, trim and wiry. He is never demonstrative, and his face often is so serious it is almost sad. He wears his hair like no other man on earth, but then he is not just exactly like any other man on earth. His eyes are keen and dark, his nose straight, his mouth firm, but concealed under a trou gray mustache, his chin round, but strong. One of the most notable things about his face is a wen on one cheek, and, doubtless, like Cromwell, he wants to be painted as he is, warts and all.

At the time he was made secretary of war Elihu Root was receiving from his practice a sum many times as great as his salary in the cabinet. It has been said that his yearly income then was nearly $100,000. It is also asserted that since returning to his practice he was in the way of making twice that amount. Among other retainers he might have had was that offered by Thomas F. Ryan to act as attorney for the Equitable. The fact that he was willing to give up all this for a government salary of $8,000 per year is a fact that should not be overlooked in this dollar grabbing age.

The secretary of state does not care much for society. He spends most of his time, night and day, in hard work. He has two sons and one daughter and lives unostentatiously.

FREDERICK SIEGEL.

HON. ELIHU ROOT.

of a thing, rips the heart out of a question, brushes aside all minor considerations and goes directly to the point at issue. Perhaps he owes this quality of mind to his father, who was a professor of mathematics. At any rate, he possesses the mathematical turn, which will not permit him to take a superficial view of things, but makes him solve his problem and take the meat out of whatever is brought to his attention. Then, too, he is an organizer and has the executive temperament. To cap it all, he is rigidly loyal to his client, whether that client be a corporation or the government of the United States.

Not a Novice in Statecraft.

The new premier of the cabinet is not a novice in the duties of his position. In the trying days of 1900, when the foreign legations were shut up at Peking, President McKinley was at his home in Canton and Secretary Hay was ill in New Hampshire. Root, being next in command, had to bear the burden. The famous dispatches to Li Hong Chang were written by Root, and the command to General Chaffee to march forward to the relief of the American minister, which led so much to do with forcing the rest of the powers to take a similar action, was given by Root. The policy of the McKinley administration to maintain the integrity of China had been formulated by Hay, it is true, but the carrying out of the policy was left to the secretary of war. Perhaps the thorough way in which the second member of the cabinet played his part at that trying time had much to do with placing him at the head of the cabinet now. However that may be, he revealed himself a master of the game of statecraft, and no fear need be entertained that he will not be able to take a hand along with the chancelleries of the old world. The commanding position which the United States has taken in the diplomacy of the nations will not suffer under Elihu Root. His enemies—and he has many—will be as ready to admit that as his friends. Whatever faults he may have, he does not fall in a crisis. In plain language, he is not slipshod; he does not fall down; he delivers the goods.

Richard Roberts of Terre Haute, the negro who shot and killed a negro named Wilson, employed in a construction gang at Burnet, Saturday night, surrendered.

ply does not consider it as a factor entering into the equation.

His Methods as Orator.

As a speaker he is masterly and exhaustive, making clear and cogent arguments, but is not much versed in methods of appealing to the popular fancy. Perhaps it never occurred to him to cultivate that style of oratory. He is the typical lawyer, who strives to satisfy his clients and justify their faith in him. After that is done his duty, at least so far as he sees it, is performed. His attitude is not exactly the famous Vanderbilt motto of "the public be damned," but as for carrying popular favor it seemingly never enters his mind.

A Friendship of Long Standing.

The little part he did take in politics during these years was for the most part against the Platt machine and with the so called silk stocking reform element in the Republican party. Theodore Roosevelt took considerable part in reform politics in those days, which makes the friendship between himself and Root of long standing. The policy of the "easy boss" to get his enemies out of his way by having them appointed or elected to office doubtless accounted for these two vigorous young men going to the front in national politics. Platt never did seem to bear malice, but only considered a move from the standpoint of his effect on his control of New York politics. Whether it was due to this fact or simply a graceful bowing to the inevitable, at any rate Platt raised no public objection when Root was made secretary of war in 1899. As at present in the state department, a strong man was needed in the war portfolio at that time, and President McKinley, the excellent judge of men, after looking the country over, selected the then comparatively unknown lawyer, Elihu Root of New York. His keen insight into human nature was probably never shown more clearly than in that choice.

Few cabinet officers have had graver problems confronting them than those which faced Root in the assumption of that office. The newspapers had teemed with criticisms and recriminations.

As a result of the explosion of the boiler of a thrashing machine near Blackstone, Kan., Daniel Tobias was killed, John Huddleston and Roy Wycoff were injured.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES.

No change has been manifested in the condition of Bishop L. W. Joyce at Minneapolis. He is still semi-conscious, occasionally recognizing his attendants.

Seven of the twelve stockyards men indicted in Kansas City on Saturday by the grand jury for alleged weighing frauds pleaded not guilty yesterday and were released on bail, the cases being set for trial in October.

In the Oregon land fraud cases Congressman John Newton Williamson was on the witness stand in his own behalf yesterday in Portland and denied that he had any part in or knowledge of any conspiracy to suborn perjury. The prosecution introduced evidence showing Williamson's connection with certain filings on land near Prineville.

Mary, the 2-year-old daughter of John Glynn of Rock Falls, Ill., accidentally drank carbolic acid and is dead.

A permit has been issued for the establishment of a city trust and savings bank of Sterling, Ill., to be capitalized at $50,000.

Alleging that they are not being paid standard wages, the 250 employees of the Hazel Mountain Coal company at Elk Ridge, Pa., went on strike.

The entire force of mothers at Carroll Brothers' laundry in Hongkong, Mich., was locked out and will be replaced by new men who are being imported for the position.

By the accidental overturning of a Y. Miss Maude Masten of Pannyan rowboat on Keokuk lake, Rochester, N. Y., and Miss Renner Fankner of Mansfield, Pa., were drowned.

While driving his horse into the river at Kaukauna for the purpose of washing the buggy, the rapid current incident to the exceptionally high water swept the animal off his feet and A. C. Langdon narrowly escaped losing his life. He and his horse were rescued after having been carried a distance of nearly a block down stream.

Edward Harding, a contractor of Racine, performed large contract jobs in Green Bay a few years ago. Less than a year ago he was called to testify in alleged graft cases at Green Bay and afterward he was indicted, charged with perjury. On Monday he was notified that the case would be dropped by the Green Bay officials.

ORFORDVILLE.

Orfordville, July 18.—Yesterday afternoon as Amon Eggen and his hired man, Will Witt, were drawing hay on A. P. Gaarder's farm one of the lines got under the tongue. Mr. Witt, who was leading stepped down onto the tongue to loosen the line when the horses became frightened and started to run. Mr. Eggen, who was pitching hay, rushed to their heads and caught one of the horses by the bit, but the horse stepped on his foot, dragging him down, and one of the wheels ran over his leg, cutting a gash about six inches long but no bones were broken. Mr. Keitiley took a dozen stitches in the cut. Mr. Witt succeeded in getting on one of the horse's backs and finally stopped them after they had run about eighty rods.
